As school libraries close, children lose access and the achievement gap grows larger. The easy solution, and one backed up by over 20 state and international studies confirms that access to books allows children to read more. Reading more creates better readers. The school library provides access to books, plus access to the professional who can lead our children into their digital future safely and thinking critically about their world - both virtual and real.

The State Board of Education has adopted Model School Library Standards that teach students how to be digitally safe, better readers, and lifelong learners. Research has proven that increases in the number of services school libraries provide are related to higher STAR test scores.

The California School Library Association (CSLA) has launched the California Campaign for Strong School Libraries to make the public aware of the importance of strong school libraries for our children. School librarians teach students the skills needed to be critical and proficient users of information on the Internet. They guide them to a love of reading and through the maze of information gathering. To learn more about the Campaign, please visit <http://librarycampaign.csla.net/>

Join the Campaign for Strong California School Libraries and become a Victor Valley Union High School District “Best Seller.” Your students will thank you!
